

Matthew Evangelista

Matthew Evangelista is President White Professor of History and Political Science and Chair of the Department of Government at Cornell University, (Ithaca, New York, USA) where he teaches courses in international and comparative politics. He received his undergraduate degree in Russian History and Literature from Harvard, a certificate in Russian language from the Pushkin Institute in Moscow, and his MA and PhD in Government from Cornell. Before returning to Cornell in 1996 he taught for ten years at the University of Michigan. He has been a visiting scholar at Harvard, Stanford, the Brookings Institution, and the European University Institute in Florence, a visiting professor at the Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore in Milan and a visiting professor and Fulbright lecturer at the Università di Bologna. Professor Evangelista is the author of four books: Innovation and the Arms Race (1988); Unarmed Forces: The Transnational Movement to End the Cold War (1999), winner of the Marshall Shulman prize from the American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies and the Jervis-Schroeder Prize from the American Political Science Association; The Chechen Wars: Will Russia Go the Way of the Soviet Union? (2002, Finnish translation 2004); and Law, Ethics, and the War on Terror (2008, Italian translation 2009). He is the editor of Peace Studies: Critical Concepts in Political Science, 4 vols. (2005), and co-editor of Partners or Rivals? European-American Relations after Iraq (2005); New Wars, New Laws? Applying the Laws of War in 21st Century Conflicts (2005); and Democracy and Security: Preferences, Norms, and Policy-making (2008). His articles have appeared in scholarly journals as well as magazines such as The Nation and Harper's. He has served on the editorial board of Cornell University Press and journals including World Politics and International Organization, and as Chair of the National Council for Eurasian and East European Research. His current research interests include international humanitarian law, separatist movements, and gender and conflict. He served as director of Cornell's Peace Studies Program from 2002 to 2008, and as course director of the International School on Disarmament and Research on Conflicts, 19th, 20th and 21st Winter Courses, 2006-2008.